At the start of this decade Canon Ran Chase, Canon to the Ordinary, was very helpful in aiding with the running of the ECC program.
He's pictured here celebrating Eucharist after a camp prank moved church to the ballfield.

The Craft Shed was put in place before the pavilion was built. Here campers line up for gimp in the bright sun.

In 2001, Susan Henthorne officially became the Director of ECC. After her change in position she moved off property, which made way for Joyce Roberts to move into the apartment.

Joyce and Lance Roberts come on as Resident and Property Manager in 2001 and 2002, respectively. Pictured to their right is Barbara Sidla, who worked as office manager.

Susan Henthorne left her post as director in 2005. Sue Hurn was working as a Diocesan staff person at the time, and graciously volunteered to come out to ECC to fill the void for the summer of 2006. She served as Director for four summers.

In 2005, the first large-scale fundraiser was planned and hosted by camp alumni to support the ministry of ECC. Annual fundraisers took place after that, and friends of ECC and camp alumni have continued to help support our programs through those events.

"As a teenager, it felt liberating to be accepted at ECC. The authentic connections developed with peers, God, and myself helped develop the courage to try something different everyday (e.g. tree pruning, barbecue sauce, comedy improv). I developed the audacity to reinvent myself, evolving into a stronger, sillier, more creative and joyful individual... the greatest gift!"

Joyce and Lance brought more than experience and compassion to their roles at ECC – they also brought equipment! Here a group of staff pose with Lance's backhoe.

A multitude of factors, including September 11 and an increase in anxiety nationwide, caused a significant decrease in enrollment in the early to mid-2000's. Bishop Wolf called together a Task Force to consider necessary changes for the good of the camp. Many of the initiatives set forth in the final report have been put in place, including property improvements. After the Station Fire in 2003, additional property improvements were made to meet the new fire codes in RI.
